Practical Skills

Students at NLUO are not only provided theoretical knowledge about law, they are also trained in practical skills for advocacy, negotiations entrepreneurship etc. This has helped our students to excel in different areas such as having their own start-ups, and excelling in national and international competitions.

Social outreach is an important part of NLUO's academic journey. The university has one of the best legal aid programs in the country. In addition many teachers make field visits and practical work part of their course design thereby exposing students to practical issues and equipping them with necessary skills to deal with real life issues.

To multiply the effect of legal scholarship, we frequently organize lecture series/seminars/ conferences/ workshops on diverse aspects of law and allied subjects by inviting scholars, practitioners, lawyers, judges, and members of the media who share their critical perspectives and experiences in the fields of law, politics, judiciary, economic affairs, international affairs, history, and culture. This provides a platform for open dialogue between scholars, faculty, and students and generates a healthy environment of cross-sectoral learning.

To fulfill our social commitment, we organize legal aid camps in the villages across the State of Odisha in collaboration with the United Nations Development Program, the High Court of Orissa, and the District Judiciary. These programs are organized, coordinated entirely by the student body under the supervision of law professors. This enables the students to learn the application of law in society and connect it with the principles of law taught in the classroom.
